"A SIMPLE FACT ABOUT" KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES. Ask throughout the world, in any country that can be named, you will find them largely sold. There is absolutely no remedy that is so speedy in giving relief, so certain to cure, and yet the most delicate our take them. TINRIVALLED REMEDY.

UNRIVALLED REMEDY:

TINRIVALLED REMEDY. UNRIVALLED REMEDY. "Dear Sir,—I am a poor hand at expressing my feelings; but I should like to thank you. Your lozenges have done wonders in relieving my terrible court. Since I had the operation of 'Tracheotomy' (the same Since I had the operation of 'Tracheotomy' (the same as the late Emperor of Germany, and unlike him, thank God, I am still alive) performed at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, no one could possibly have had a more violent cough; it was so bad at times that it quite exhausted me. The mucus, which was very copious and hard, has been softened, and I have been able to get rid of it without difficulty.—I am, sir, yours truly, J. HILL."

MEDICAL NOTE. The above speaks for itself. From strict inquiry it appears that the benefit from using Keating's Cough Lozenges is understated. The operation was a specially severe one, and was performed by the specialist, Dr. H. T. Butlin, of St. Barthelomow's Hospital. Since H. T. Butlin, of St. Barthelomow's Hospital.

the operation the only means of relief is the use of these Lozenges. So successful are they that one affords immediate benefit, although from the nature of the case the throat irritation is intense. UNRIVALLED TESTIMONY. Under date Sept. 8th, 1801, Mr. Hill again writes: I should long since have been dead, but for your Lozenges—they are worth their weight in gold. I will gladly see and tell anyone what a splendid cough remedy they are.

Keating's Cough Lozenges the unrivalled remedy for COUGHS, HOARSENESS and THROAT TROUBLES, are sold in Bottles by all Chemists.

HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 1, 1898. Cynical paople have sometimes expressed doubts as to whether there can possibly exist in these days of ours such a thing as 'business morality.' It has been asserted that a man who wishes to ret on in business must not be too particular about the means by which he attains his object, and that he must not place too much reliance on the wisdom of the maxim that honesty is the best policy.' The fierce competition in which he has to engage is blamed not only for obliterating the distinction between honesty and dishonesty in the mind of the business man, but for driving him to act systematically in opposition to the maxim quoted above. All this has ... in effect been stated with more or less ... force times without number. It merely represents what may be said to have become a series of stock phrases altrong a certain classiof people of Perhaps such to statements are more frequently made is a excuses for failure than as advice to those who wish to succeed in business. It must afford some comfort to the man who has not succeeded to be able to say that his failure was due to his inability to be a rogue. However that may be, the gospel of business immorality is preached, and we find it set forth in a very direct and uncompromising way in the course of a discussion which has been going on in the columns of the leading English paper in Yokohama with reference to a lately-deceased Prince of business men, who was as much distinguish-London House, and bought direct from the like morality in his financial transactions as he was for his success in amasing wealth, and who, thereforemight be made to serve as a witness to the truth of the aferesaid respel . A contributions have appeared anonymously, unitertook, as he says, to say a few words in favour of a dead man (Jay Gould) whom it has become the fashion to abuse. He had no idea, he states, that his remarks, would stir up a discussion, but as he was taking up the had become the fashion to abuse, the stirring up of a discussion was not an unnatural result. The discussion was apparently not to the liking of the American millionaire's champion, as is evident from the not altogether goodnatured reply which he makes to his wine, Green Capsule,..... 6 0.60 critics. He says he supposed he was addressing persons who knew something of business morality, as distinguished from commercial morality, and who were fully aware, as they ought to be that the application of religious principles to business would result 1.00 in something little short of unis versal bankruptey. Among mi the other things which he supposed his readers ought to know is that; in most branches of business, the merchant who should to low the principle of telling Bottled) (1.25 the truth about his goods and obliging Per Case. Per Case. his employees to do the same would 1 doz. 2 doz certainly fail-fand do more injury by Quarts Pints. his failure than he would do good by his veracity. Then, anlarging on this text, he proceeds :- That the labels 7.50 on nearly all bottles are lies, that the 12 00 | majority of advertisements intended to 5.50 attract buye s are lies, that the representations of nearly all salesmen are lies, that the circulars issued by manufacturers are lies, that in most branches of business absolute honesty means bankruptcy for the owner and discharge at short notice for the employee, are facts too well known to need discussion at all. Now all this must be a little startling even to those who have not been in the hickir of placing implicit confidence in labels, advertisements, circulars and the representations of salesment but it is nothing to what follows. Jay Gould's defender proceeds to show that the saccessful business man must not only be himself immoral, but that he must also -all in the way of husiness be the To such an extent(says he) is the immorality of business in some places intensified by competition, that American firms employling on high as three hundred women, will representing a nanital of many millions. cannot afford to pay those women living wages. Board is from four to five dollars. The girls are paid from ode dollar and a half to throe dollars . It is further required that they should be bandsomely drested and of engaging appearance. I enquired ands of a person connected with such "it firm, whether it was not possible to pay the girls more. Facts and figures showed that a more generous policy would mean inability to compete with rival firms,—in other words it would mean bankenptoy. Such businesses

That there is a great deal of exag-

Consciously or unconsciously, according to circumstances, the preacher must condons the immorality which gives him bread and butter. If such an one invokes the relegious sentiment to condemn. Gould's business tricks, he is doing so because it is the custom of business to denounce whatever is either larger or smaller than its own fixed standard of hypocrisy. And he is doing it, in nine cases out of ten, with the knowledge that he himself is living upon the profits of [108 trade and commerce and stock transac-

of a relatively, immoral basis. They manufacture opportunities and inducements for prostitution, and lower the social condition of the communities they exist in. As for other immoral consequences of competition, which everybody knows, those involved by the development of the wholesale clothing trade need not be dwelt upon more than to say that the condition of the women employed has become even worse than it was in the days when that borrible sercespo was uttered by Thackersy-"The man who seduces a seamstress is a benefactor of geration in the above statement as to the effects of trade competition in America, we have not the slightest doubt. The writer is trying to paint Jay Gould against the darkest possible 4.50 0.40 background. INDIAN FOLK-LORE ABOUT THE

At the last meeting of the Anthropological Society of Bombay Mr Surat Chandra Mitra, M.A., B.L., read a paper ou Indian Folk Beliefs about the Tiger. The author at first dwell upon his view of the origin of animal warranip. He said that 'in the awe based upon the magnitude of size and the excess of strength of some members of the brute creation, animal must, therefore, be propitlated for bestowal of favours or for appeasing their wrath. Coming to the subject proper of the paper, the author said that a tiger demon was one of the recognized deities in the pantheon of some of the aboriginal tribes of India. They worshipped the tiger demon, thinksuperstitions belief was that human beings were metamorphosed into tigers by eating this and Pasting Fu, would greatly add the root of a particular kind of plant, and that, if in that state, he could est the root seconded the re-election as members of the small scale of what is suggested above, and formed into a human being.
